1. "Quiet Period" shall occur during the last Monday through Saturday (during the fall and spring terms), or the last three days (for 8-week terms), or the 1 day (in 3–4-week terms) of the instruction period preceding the final examination period. Distance learning, hybrid and asynchronous classes are subject to this same regulation as in-person instruction.
2. "Quiet Period" is defined as a time during which courses that conduct or collect an assessment during the final exam period shall refrain from assigning or collecting assessments. Here, "assessments" are defined as activities relating to the course's learning objectives that students turn in for class credit that the course instructor intends to use to judge whether students have met the associated learning objectives. Assessments do not include class participation during normally-scheduled class time. Courses that do not offer an assessment (such as a final exam, quiz) during the final examination period are exempt from following the restrictions on Quiet Period. It is the responsibility of the unit head to ensure that the unit's faculty preserves this regulation thusly
